TOLLEY'S RUN WON VICTORY

For Sewanee Over Vanderbilt
In Great Game
Thursday.

WAS CLOSE AND EXCITING.

Hero of The Day and Makes
New Record For The Team.

In the football game at Nashville Thursday Sewanee defeated Vanderbilt for the first time since 1909 by 14 to 13. The game was won by Lee Tolley, the 148-pound captain and field general of the Tiger eleven, who closed his gridiron career by a fine exhibition of football as has ever been seen in the history of football in Nashville.

Not only did the blond-haired youth lead the second Sewanee team to beat Vanderbilt the third time in 15 years, but he contributed one of the most spectacular runs ever witnessed on Dudley field when he returned a punt seventy-five yards through the entire Vanderbilt brigade for Sewanee's second touchdown.

For brilliance and beauty of execution it has had few equals, if any, in the south, and the Tiger leader retires from the game as the premier quarterback in the S. I. A. A beyond a doubt.

While it fell to the Purple captain to carry his team to victory, the fates conspired against the Commodore leader, who also played his final football game, and for the first time experienced the sensation of being beaten by the Tigers. The difference in the score was a goal from touchdown, and it was Captain Sikes, over anxious to tie it up, whose toe failed to ring up the final point which would have brought the battle to a deadlock.

Sewanee scored two touchdowns on the Commodores, in both of which Mr. Tolley played a prominent part, kicking each goal successfully, while the Commodores also scored as many touchdowns, only made one goal.

When Actor Made an Enemy.

Willie Edouin once told of an actor in a certain company who one day incautiously disclosed the secret that he was actually saving $2 a week. The rest of the company were dumfounded at it. Then they enjoyed "the joke" immensely. He was chaffed unmercifully. There was only one person present who did not join in the fun against him. He remained silent and when the money saver left he took an opportunity of slipping out after him and congratulated him on his common sense in providing for a rainy day. Then he informed him that he himself had often thought of doing the same thing, but circumstances had always been against him, and just then he was at his wits' ends. Would the saver mind lending him, say, a ten-spot till Sunday? He did not get it and became from that time one of the most bitter ridiculers of saving as tending to make a man think of no one but himself. It really requires courage in many circles to own to one's qualities.

Princess

"THE OLD ARMY COAT," an Alice Joyce Series feature, is a special attraction at the Princess for today. This drama is said to be even more absorbing than any of the features which have preceded it in the series. It is a two-part production and several interesting scenes of the Confederate Reunion held at Jacksonville, Fla., recently, are shown during the course of the production. Among the popular KALEM stars in the cast surrounding Miss Joyce are Henry Hallam, Benjamin Ross, Robert Walker and Jere Austin. Because his nephew Leroy is a worthless character, Major Robertson, an old Confederate veteran, makes Alice his heir. Due to Leroy's infamous behavior, the Major dies, knowing that Leroy would destroy the will if he should lay hands on it, Alice hides it in the Major's old army coat. Unaware of what the garment contains, Leroy later throws the coat away. It is picked up by a tramp who leaves town. Unable to produce the will, Alice is helpless to prevent the fortune from reverting to Leroy. But fate takes a hand and the girl finds the missing document after a series of incidents of extraordinary interest.

REALLY GOOD MUSICAL PUNS

If Such Play Upon Words Ever Is Permissible, These Two May Be Pardoned.

It is said that a respectable tradesman of the name of G. Sharp was astonished one morning to find that some musical wag had added to his name the words "is a flat," which, however correct in a musical sense, was certainly far from complimentary to the worthy tradesman.

There is another instance in which a capital musical pun was perpetrated, equally correct in a technical sense, and equally uncomplimentary to the person at whose expense it was made. Two gentlemen were passing the shop of a music seller in the southeast district of the metropolis, and the proprietor was standing outside the door. As they did so, one of them pointed in the direction of the shop, and remarked:

"That liar is always outside!" The unoffending tradesman heard the remark, and wonderful to relate, seemed immensely tickled at the observation. The secret of it was that he thought the remark had reference to his sign—a golden lyre—over the shop-front.—London Tit-Bits.

Seeing Contemporaries as They Are.

After all, the test of a vacation is the renewed zest with which we take up our work on our return. The person who lives among his contemporaries all the time has no idea what interesting people they are. They appear even romantic when one returns to them from a short trip abroad. There is a moment before we begin again to do things, when we have leisure to see things.

Of course, we must take up our responsibilities again. Our serious business with our contemporaries is to improve their conditions, their morals and their manners. We do not have too much time for this work. But before we begin again the attempt to make them what they ought to be, we may enjoy the moment when we have enough freshness of vision to see them as they are.—Atlantic Monthly.

First to Distill Perfumes.

The process of distilling perfumes was invented by Avicenna, an Arabian doctor who lived in the tenth century. He was the first to discover the process of separating the aroma from the plants and flowers so that it could be used instead of greasy unguents and smelly oils. Early-day physicians used to prescribe certain sweet odors for various ailments, particularly in the case of nervousness. The Egyptian women wore strings of scented beads on their necks, as do the Chinese women of today and the modern woman with her string of scented rose beads.

Vulnerable.

During an election that took place in a certain town in Yorkshire, a well-known man, taking his little son with him, was going to the polling station to cast his vote. On the way he met a friend going on the same errand as himself, with whom he got into conversation. After a very exciting argument, the two men came to blows.

The poor lad was very much frightened, and, seeing that his father was getting the worst of it, suddenly called out to him:

"Hit him in the watch, father; that's cost him something!"

ENEMY PUT TO FLIGHT

Austrians, Thrown Into Breach,
Share Usual Fate In Prussian Battles.

London, Nov. 27.—The Petrograd correspondent of the Chronicle, describing the reported German defeat in Poland, says:

"The weakness of Gen. von Hindenburg's position was that he was isolated from the Crown Prince's army, which was fighting south of Czenstochowa. When von Hindenburg found himself hard pressed he ordered into the gap at Wielun the Austrian troops who were intended to turn the Russian left. These Austrians shared the fate of all Austrians who have been made to fight the Prussian battles. The Russian generals put them to flight, capturing 5,000 prisoners.

"Gen. von Hindenburg's position is now hopeless and the thousands of prisoners streaming into Warsaw speak eloquently of his failure.

"In the battle with the Crown Prince's army the Russians are winning.

"The Russian army advancing westward from the River San is within twelve miles of Cracow. The civil population, fearing the destruction of the city, demanded its surrender. In reply the military Governor ordered the wholesale expulsion of civilians."

THE DECEMBER

STRAND MAGAZINE.

Several important articles deal with the European War appear in the Strand Magazine for December. Conan Doyle contributes an interesting and valuable paper which he entitles "The War: A Statement of the British Case." This article clearly and convincingly explains exactly where Great Britain stands in the present European imbroglio and should be read and digested by all, whether they are Pro-German or in favor of the Allies. Saint Nihal Singh supplies the first of a series of extremely interesting articles entitled "Our friends the Fighting Rajahs" and gives us some intimate character studies, anecdotes and personal impressions of the Indian Princes who have placed their armies, their services and even their jewels at the disposal of Great Britain in her hour of trial. Another article which will be read with especial interest deals with Lord Kitchener. The series of papers entitled "How They 'Broke Into Print'" reaches No. 5, the contributors being Montague Glass, Louis Joseph Vance, Mary Stewart Cutting, Emerson Hough, Irvin S. Cobb, and others. The fiction includes stories by some of the best writers of the day.

FRANK COMFORTED

BY JUSTICE HOLMES.

Washington, November 26.—Announcement was made by counsel for Leo M. Frank of Atlanta, Ga., convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan, that Justice Holmes had refused to issue a writ of error for the Supreme Court to review the case. At the same time Justice Holmes rendered an informal opinion, according to one of Frank's attorneys, in which he stated he had very serious doubts if Frank had a fair trial because of the trial taking place in the presence of a hostile demonstration and seemingly dangerous crowd. Application will be made to the entire court on Monday for the writ.
